Howard County Poetry & Literature Society

ENLARGING THE AUDIENCE FOR CONTEMPORARY POETRY & LITERATURE SINCE 1974

ANNUAL REPORT FY 2011

JULY 2011-JUNE 2012

We've Gone Global!

The Writing Life has been viewed in more than 25 countries on YouTube

BY SUSAN THORNTON HOBBY

All around the world, people are looking for something: food, oil, enlightenment, a good dry cleaner. Some seek words. Now, from HoCoPoLitSo's tiny corner of the world, people can find words that open up the world.

Go to YouTube and search "Martin Espada." Up pops the full half-hour interview Espada gave in the Howard Community College television studio in April 2011, in which he recites portions of "The Trouble Ball," about his father watching his first big-league baseball game. On August 21, 2012, a poetry lover in Turkey searched for Martin Espada, and watched the bushy-bearded poet sit in a cushy armchair in Columbia, Maryland, and talk about how his 11-year-old father sat in Ebbets Field to watch the Brooklyn Dodgers and along the way discovered racism. Perhaps something in Espada's words resonated with that literary type in Turkey.

HoCoPoLitSo has gone global. Not to mention twenty-first century. Twenty-two of HoCoPoLitSo's literary talk shows, The Writing Life, are now available in their full length on YouTube,

Australia
 Barbados
 Botswana
 Cambodia
 Canada
 Cayman Islands
 Faroe Islands
 Ireland
 Jamaica
 Lithuania
 Luxembourg
 Macedonia
 Malaysia
 Netherlands-Antilles
 New Zealand
 Nigeria
 Norway
 Pakistan
 Philippines
 Romania
 Saint Lucia
 Singapore
 South Africa
 Trinidad & Tobago
 Turkey
 United Kingdom

with more being uploaded every week.

HoCoPoLitSo founder Ellen Kennedy began recording The Writing Life in 1986 when she decided these fleeting moments of literary epiphany HoCoPoLitSo was creating should be captured on film. These shows are gems. Where else can you get a full half hour of Lucille Clifton, reading "good times" and "carved on a gravestone in a southern baptist churchyard" and laughing heartily with her friend and fellow poet Roland Flint? Both poets are gone now; they live by the resurrecting power of computers.

People from Malaysia, Singapore, Pakistan and Canada watched Clifton's show in August. The Writing Life videos have been watched nearly 13,000 times, by viewers around the world.

Literature lovers now have this treasure trove, easily discovered only by following the map of the Internet. If they can't sit in a breathless hall and listen to Rita Dove and Saul Bellow and Frank McCourt, like the lucky ones who live close to HoCoPoLitSo and its programs can, they can watch and listen to the words go out into the world, one tiny screen at a time.
